BY JOAQUIN MILLER.

I mis. how wholly I miss thy wood, My nintchiess, magnificent dark-leaved firs That climb up the terrible heights of Hood. Where only the breath of white heaven stirs! These alps they are barren ; wrapt in storms, Formless masses of T. tan forms, They loom like ruins of a grandeur gone, And tonesome as death to look upon.

O God! once more in my life to hear The voice of a wood that is loud and alive, That stirs with its being like a vast bec-hive And oh once mo e in my life to see The great bright eyes of the antiered deer; To sing with the birds that sing with me, To treed where only the red man trod. To say no word, but listen to God!
